With its recent fundamental political shift from monarchy to republic, the Federal Democratic Republic of Nepal has entered a new phase in its political development. Peace is being consolidated and elections have been held. That said, much ground remains to be covered to fully consolidate these gains. Some observers are concerned that widespread violence may return if the Communist Party of Nepal Maoist (CPN-M), the group which waged a 10-year armed struggle against the former government of Nepal, feels its political agenda has been thwarted by political opposition in the Constituent Assembly. The Constituent Assembly elections of April 10, 2008, were a key step toward consolidating peace in Nepal and enhancing Nepal's democratic process. The Constituent Assembly has been elected to form the structure of the new government of Nepal. It will also be confronted with the need to address economic development and ethnic issues. The Maoists will likely lead this process as they have the largest representation in the Constituent Assembly. As violence associated with the former Maoist insurgency has abated, intercommunal tensions have mounted and at times become violent. This has been particularly acute in the Terai region where the Madhesi live. The Madhesi, or plains folk, seek . . . This item ships from La Vergne, TN. Paperback.
