Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Field Artillery Training: Enlisted, Army War College, August, 1917 Responsibility for the training of the troops committed to their charge rests on nil commanders. Subject to the principles laid down in the various training manuals, regulations, and this general program, commanders are at liberty to employ such methods as appear best calculated to attain the desired end. Superior commanders, while holding their subordinates responsible for the training of their units, will never forego their function of guidance and control and will exercise a general and continuous supervision over their work. In carrying out this duty they should not curb the initiative of their subordinates nor Interfere unnecessarily so long as the training Is conducted on sound lines. Without trained cadres of officers and men to carry on the instruction, the presence of all battery officers with their batteries Is essential for the proper instruction of their men, especially during the period of preliminary instruction, and officers should not be taken from the batteries to perform staff or other duties for which staff officers are provided. The captain must supervise the instruction of the sections of his battery, advise the lieutenants, and make corrections whenever necessary to produce results. Training must include both moral and physical instruction. The development of a soldierly spirit is required to help the soldier bear fatigue, privation, and danger cheerfully; to imbue him with a sense of honor; to give him confidence in his superiors and comrades; to Increase his powers of initiative, of self-confidence, and of self-restraint; to train him to obey orders or to act suitably in their absence; to Impress upon him that so long as he is...
