About Reading; Continued. There is a break in the order where, after the prayer for the President, certain prayers shall be omitted when the Litany is said, and may be omitted when the Holy Communion is immediately to follow. So far as it relates to the Holy Communion it is a new usage, and neither clergy nor people seem fully to understand it. When we stop at that point to begin the Litany, the custom is universal not to put in the grace of our Lord, but either with or without a hymn, to pass at once to the first sentence of the Litany. But I find that when, instead of the Litany, the Order for Holy Communion is then to be taken up, most clergymen mark the pause by saying, The grace of our Lord, etc. It is wrong. That...
